

7521363950.txt

It is important to me that I can choose products and services from companies independent of the speed of access to their websites. For example, online banking is becoming ubiquitous, but banks excel at finances, not internet. So, I would like to choose to use the best bank based on its performance and experience, rather than a bank that stands out from the rest because it paid for higher tier internet access to be more available to access online.