

7521363957.txt

Come on. It should be blatantly obvious why Net Neutrality is important. The fact that your organization requires us, the people of these United States, to sit you down and explain it to you, shows just how broken this agency has become.

To be blunt, we need Net Neutrality because corporations do not have the American consumer's best interests at heart- that is reserved for profit. If Net Neutrality is ultimately discarded, Internet service providers WILL use it to solidify an already terrifyingly powerful hold on America's internet access.