Net Neutrality is important for one single reason - no one company should be allowed to pay more for "faster" service - conversely no company should be penalized for not paying what amounts to a bribe in order for their information (accessible for FREE by all Americans) to be made available.

This is akin to paying a higher toll on an Interstate and therefore being allowed to drive faster while all other drivers are forced to clog the right lane. On a system that was designed to be fairly accessed by all.
