

7521372550.txt

The internet is a utility. Even the poorest people in the world make room in their budgets for internet access. It is necessary for modern civilized living, like running water and electricity. The internet is a utility.