I work as a senior security engineer for a private consulting firm. I believe the Comcast Time-Warner merger would be the the largest monopoly since Microsoft with a lot more power. I didn't agree with the original buyout of NBC and if this goes through it really just goes to show that money can buy you anything in politics. Comcast has already proven they don't care about consumers getting the lowest customer satisfactions ratings and speeds that don't even compete with the new Google Fiber and comcast service is at least double the cost for about half the service. If I had the option to get google fiber I would however I unfortunately have no choice in the matter because I can either have comcast or AT&T who are both in my honest humble opinion the worst companies in America. In that choice I also have to choose between a faster speed service or a service with a company that doesn't give a crap about their customers. With AT&T it took 9 months to get back a payment that was made to the wrong account after I moved locations. If that had been the other way around they would of charged me late fees a dozen times. Which by the way I did get charged late fees for "missing my payment" because it went to the wrong account.
