

7521379000.txt

Let the marketplace determine how the Internet will function, rather than government regulations and involvement.

Having a government agency pick desirable winners and losers and regulating the system (other than protecting children) is counterproductive. Our economy needs a free marketplace without intervention.