I believe the FCC should do everything possible to enforce a free and open internet. For me especially, I need the internet to be open access. I have just begun an online business that specializes in online content (I will have 0 content offline). I need to be able to deliver this content quickly and securely to all of my customers/subscribers. If I am unable to deliver I will lose my source of income. I may not be able to compete with large companies, who would be able to pay the fees of a non-neutral internet. My business ideas may never even get off the ground.
