

7521388059.txt

Information brings people and the country together. Rural TV provides a wealth of information about life in rural america which is often far different than life in a more urban setting. The differences between cultures once explained can foster understanding and acceptance of a different rural practices which are often essential for the production of food and fiber. Rules placed on agriculture by a people who have no understanding of agricultural practices will always be counterproductive however well intentioned