Dear FCC,

My name is Samara Weiss and I live in New York, NY.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it ISPs could have too much power to determine my Internet experience by providing better access to some services but not others.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because ISPs could act as the gatekeepers to their subscribers.

I don't have a "personal story" about it, but I'm a rational adult, and this is obviously nonsensical. The internet is a public good; it's like power or roads. You don't let people pay to drive on the left on the highway.

Sincerely,

Samara Weiss
