Dear FCC,

My name is Larry Lui and I live in San Diego, CA.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it ISPs could have too much power to determine my Internet experience by providing better access to some services but not others.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because new, innovative services that can't afford expensive fees for better service will be less likely to succeed.

Net neutrality is important for the future of the internet and leveling the playing field for all companies and organizations that leverage the use of the internet. I fear that without this, we will have an internet with limited choices.

Sincerely,

Larry Lui
