I don't see why the monopolized companies aka (Verizon, AT&T, Comcast, Time Warner) are able to have that much control over content on the net. I would gladly pay more for speed, more so than that of the company. Competition is what drives economics, especially with something as fragile of the internet. The internet is what connects everyone as people should feel. It's the 21st century and we are attempting to take it back to the stone age where a few top dogs ran everything and everyone else got the run off. Jobs will decline dramatically and it will cause turmoil and distrust with the government and current laws in place that we come to call standards. I love how technology brings us together as humans and to take a jab at an unbroken system, is just plain idiotic. I trust you'll make the right decision for not only yourself but for everyone affected. Thank you.
