Dear FCC,

My name is Chris von Rosenvinge and I live in Mansfield Center, CT.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it the level, democratic, online playing field we have known until now will be lost.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because it would create more inequality, favoring the rich at the expense of everyone else.

As a small-business owner providing Internet design services to small businesses, artists and non-profits, I am concerned that my level of competitiveness and that of my clients will be diminished by any loss of net neutrality. I believe that net neutrality has been the foundation of competition and innovation, which are fundamental capitalist values.

Sincerely,

Chris von Rosenvinge
