Dear FCC,

My name is Kristen Tohill and I live in Lunenburg, MA.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it ISPs could have too much power to determine my Internet experience by providing better access to some services but not others.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because new, innovative services that can't afford expensive fees for better service will be less likely to succeed.

The Internet is important to me because, as a webcomic artist and businessperson, I know that on a neutral net viewers and customers are able to load up my website just as fast as any other. My website will thrive or fail on its own power, not because someone paid to slow access down.

Sincerely,

Kristen Tohill
