Dear FCC,

My name is JJ Tungpalan and I live in Sugar Land, TX.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it ISPs could have too much power to determine my Internet experience by providing better access to some services but not others.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because ISPs could act as the gatekeepers to their subscribers.

I want to know that I'm not being limited in my internet usage. But not only that, the internet companies could get too much power by charging whatever they want for specific packages and controlling what we get to see. The internet should be free to use by anyone (after the universal monthly fee like how it is now).

Sincerely,

JJ Tungpalan
