The government should do everything it can to promote a free and open internet for all. There should be an outright ban on fast lanes, which would harm small businesses and entrepreneurship in this sphere. Broadband access should be classified as a Title II common carrier, like any other utility, because internet is a basic necessity for modern life and needs to be free from monopolies and open for all. All ISP regulations should also cover wireless (mobile) broadband services, because that's the main way the poorest segments of the population are accessing the internet.

Please do not cave to the will of comcast, time warner, etc. and their giant lobbies in Washington. They are trying to ruin the internet for future generations just so they can make a quick buck now.

Please maintain open, honest, and clear communication with the public on this topic (it is really hard to understand what you're talking about with all this legal mumbo-jumbo -- keep it simple so people know what you are considering doing to their lives and the lives of their children and grandchildren!!!).

This is serious. Please don't mess it up. You have a lot of people counting on you.
