Dear FCC,

My name is Brendan Murphy and I live in Barnegat, NJ.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it users may have fewer options and a less diverse Internet.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because new, innovative services that can't afford expensive fees for better service will be less likely to succeed.

If you were to stop net neutrality then great things like new games, music and videos that are just starting out might not make it mainstream. And John Oliver talked about this and he's too funny and smart. Also I saw it on collegehumor which is also funny. Yup thats it.

Sincerely,

Brendan Murphy
