Dear FCC,

My name is Kirk Ridenour and I live in McAlester, OK.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it ISPs could have too much power to determine my Internet experience by providing better access to some services but not others.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because ISPs could act as the gatekeepers to their subscribers.

The internet is the single greatest medium for the exchange of ideas and creativity. Without equal access, ISPs could dictate to me what content I can watch by pricing certain groups out of the market. Treat ISPs like other utility providers.

Sincerely,

Kirk Ridenour
