Dear FCC,

My name is 1 and I live in 1, AL.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it ISPs could have too much power to determine my Internet experience by providing better access to some services but not others.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because the internet was meant to be free and it is our constitutional right to have free and equal rights

The Internet is important to me because, as a college business student, I need to know that there will not be barriers to entry for the new ideas and services that I hope to bring to the marketplace. If ISP subscribers have an easier time loading websites of existing companies than my new innovative product, there's no way that I will be able to compete or succeed. Everyone has the right to equal representation and the internet is one of the best and easiest ways to do that. And equal representation was one of the key factors in the factors of this great country and if you take that away from us you will be taking away our freedom.

Sincerely,

1
