Dear FCC,

My name is yusoph walean and I live in Montclair, CA.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it ISPs could have too much power to determine my Internet experience by providing better access to some services but not others.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because new, innovative services that can't afford expensive fees for better service will be less likely to succeed.

The internet freedom is what allows numerous artists in their own right to express themselves without boundaries of large capital or outside influence to corrupt the soul out the idea. Being able to simply experience an idea that is shared or completely original gives a lot of satisfaction to millions.

Sincerely,

yusoph walean
