Dear FCC,

My name is David Badger and I live in Plain City, OH.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it ISPs could have too much power to determine my Internet experience by providing better access to some services but not others.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because ISPs could act as the gatekeepers to their subscribers.

The Internet is important to me because everyone has a voice. Limiting the internet is effectively limiting our 1st amendment rights. And that's, you know, unconstitutional. Also, it's important to be able to connect to small companies and websites that have the content that I'm interested in rather than just being allowed to visit the websites "approved" by ISP's because the "approved" website's paid for that privilege.

Sincerely,

David Badger
