Dear FCC,

My name is Ramuel Reyes and I live in Clovis, CA.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it ISPs could have too much power to determine my Internet experience by providing better access to some services but not others.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because ISPs could act as the gatekeepers to their subscribers.

The Internet is important to me because I've been on it for years. And I will defend my home because it matters to me. It really makes no sense. The Internet is fine it is now. And all these ISPs coming to basically regulate is wrong. Please don't let them do it. It'll be bad for all of us and will just stamp out new talent who depend on the Internet for exposure. I myself am a photographer who depend on the Internet to show my photos to people. If I have to pay extra to have my photos uploaded, I wouldn't even be able to. So please, consider this and all the thousands of letters that pretty much sound exactly like this.

Sincerely,

Ramuel Reyes
