

7521547569.txt

If my ISP has the capability to hinder sites from being viewed, I am certain that they will use this to unfairly push political and economic policies. In my place of residence, I only have one option for high speed internet, and no others are allowed to compete, which means that I have no reasonable options to view the internet that my ISP doesn't want me to see. ISPs have complete control and they intend to use that control for censorship.