Dear FCC,

My name is Unknown and I live in Elgin, IL.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it ISPs could have too much power to determine my Internet experience by providing better access to some services but not others.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because new, innovative services that can't afford expensive fees for better service will be less likely to succeed.

net neutrality prevents the isp's from being biased and corrupted by companies that can shell out more money and ruining the freedom of the internet also I think Michael Powell should be investigated for a very likely probability of conflict of interest during his service in the FCC

Sincerely,

Unknown
