Dear Mr. Wheeler,

I am writing to you, again. The first time I was begging for you not to approve AT&T pending merger/purchase. As I explained to you at the time, AT&T is my internet supplier and their monthly charge went from $26.00 back in November to $31.00 in March and they already told me it will go up to $41.00 in November. Please do not let have any more monopolies or oligopolies.

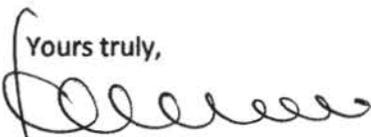

The other two reasons I am writing to you are as follows:

- 1) Some or all telephone companies provide services to entities that call people (including me) without my knowing who they are or what their telephone number is. It would not be so bad if these calls did not occur at two or three o'clock in the morning and frequently enough to be rather annoying and scary. Why does the FCC allow it to happen?
- 2) I receive calls that do show a number but as soon as I call back an operator (recording, no doubt) informs me that that telephone number is out of service. Example 212-662-1393. Again why are these people allowed to do this?

I live alone and rely on my telephone in case of emergencies. I am at a point where I am considering giving up my telephone so that I can sleep in peace and not be constantly harassed by God knows whom.

You have the power to fix all of these issues. Please do so!

Yours truly,

Lourenco O. Faria
