

7521591877.txt

As a taxpayer and citizen, I wish to exercise my right to air my objections to any and all parts of the Verizon and Comcast merger. There are already very few internet providers, and the lack of competition leads to stagnating service, outrageous pricing, and poor customer service. Internet is a basic utility, like telephone was a generation ago, and the companies that provide internet service should be held to the same rigorous standards that were created to prevent exploitation of the public in the telephone era.