Dear FCC,

My name is Phyllis Meek and I live in Hemlock, MI.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it it will be harder to slog through the advertisements to get to the stuff that I really want to learn about.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because new, innovative services that can't afford expensive fees for better service will be less likely to succeed.

The Internet is important to me because over the past twenty years the internet has made communication, research and access to information so much easier. If the bandwidths get commercialized, it will be to the detriment of this great thing we have created.

Sincerely,

Phyllis Meek
