Dear FCC,

My name is Clint Barker and I live in Kansas City, MO.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it ISPs could have too much power to determine my Internet experience by providing better access to some services but not others.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because ISPs could act as the gatekeepers to their subscribers.

The Internet is important to me because, I am an early adopter of new technology and do not want to wait for an ISP to "approve" a service before allowing me access. Competition can only be achieved by an open internet free from filters, censors, throttling, or monopolistic practices. Protecting and preserving a neutral internet and forcing ISPs to treat all traffic equally is the only way to promote innovation and new technology

Sincerely,

Clint Barker
