Dear FCC,

My name is Daniel Zachary Zapico and I live in Lareo, TX.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it ISPs could have too much power to determine my Internet experience by providing better access to some services but not others.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because new, innovative services that can't afford expensive fees for better service will be less likely to succeed.

Because, we the people, need neutrality. You big company's already have enough money. Have you forgotten that we the people are your employers? We are the ones that make you rich. And that could all easily turn against you. Just ask Microsoft, they'll tell you first hand that the consumers always get what they want. Unless you want to go broke I suggest you leave net neutrality alone.

Sincerely,

Daniel Zachary Zapico
