Dear FCC,

My name is Cheryl Strube and I live in Plano, TX.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it ISPs could have too much power to determine my Internet experience by providing better access to some services but not others.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because ISPs could act as the gatekeepers to their subscribers.

The Internet is important to me because it provides an outlet for all people to be able to express themselves. It is incredibly difficult today to get information that is not biased and twisted by media that wants to control public opinion. I use the internet to learn about the various viewpoints and situations of people all over the world. Getting rid of internet neutrality is the same as censorship. When you put a price on the value of information than only the rich will be able to express ideas. That should be discouraged in a democratic society.

Sincerely,

Cheryl Strube
