Dear FCC,

My name is Rebekah Owens and I live in Ridgefield, CT.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it ISPs could have too much power to determine my Internet experience by providing better access to some services but not others.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because new, innovative services that can't afford expensive fees for better service will be less likely to succeed.

We the people. Yes, us. Remember us? No, I didn't think so... We are not here to be enslaved by a system that only generates wealth for some and greater and greater poverty for others. I want information to remain free and widely available.

Sincerely,

Rebekah Owens
