Dear FCC,

My name is Shelby Condit and I live in Norman, OK.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it ISPs could have too much power to determine my Internet experience by providing better access to some services but not others.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because new, innovative services that can't afford expensive fees for better service will be less likely to succeed.

Corporations already run enough of the country. Can't we at least use the internet free of filtering from old white men?

Sincerely,

Shelby Condit
