

I can see no benefit whatsoever to the American consumer for the merger of Comcast and Time Warner. Customer horror stories are abundant. It is obvious that neither of these companies care about treating consumers fairly and with dignity. They do this because they can. By virtue of previous backdoor agreements with towns and cities these two companies already have consumers bound to them and their atrocious business practices. A merger would only make the situation worse.