Dear FCC,

My name is Rolf Wucherer and I live in Ann Arbor, MI.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it ISPs could have too much power to determine my Internet experience by providing better access to some services but not others.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because new, innovative services that can't afford expensive fees for better service will be less likely to succeed.

Many different kinds of organizations and sources of funding and effort have gone into creating the Internet and it will always rely on those. Allowing some parties to use their weight of influence and money to bend the Internet to their individual profit is wrong, and puts end users at an unfair disadvantage.

Sincerely,

Rolf Wucherer
