

7521701084.txt

Education relies almost entirely on internet access now. How can you purport to envision a more creative populace at the same time that the opportunity for that is diminished?