Comcast has a monopoly over the area in which I live, and their service is tolerable at best. I don't want to have to pay more for the same awful service I receive right now. There is absolutely no reason to eliminate net neutrality except for the greed of ISPs. As a student, I just want to be able to access academic websites, use Google drive, and watch Netflix in peace. The idea of America without net neutrality scares me. Corporations already have enough power--I don't want to give them more control over my life.
