

Restoring net neutrality is crucial. The FCC now needs to step up and protect Internet users from ISPs that block or discriminate against websites, online applications, or Internet services. Please don't allow companies like Verizon and TimeWarner-Comcast to create tiered pricing structures; such inequality will benefit only large corporations who can afford the higher prices while unfairly penalizing everyone else, jeopardizing small and even medium-sized businesses and even interfering with access to the media that facilitates engaged, informed citizenship.

The FCC leadership should reassert its clear authority over our nation's communications infrastructure. To preserve the open Internet, the FCC must reclassify broadband Internet access as a telecommunications service.

Please take the legal steps necessary to ensure that broadband networks stay open, accessible, reliable, and affordable for everyone.