I have had several poor customer service experiences with Comcast over the past 4 years that I was a subscriber to their service. With no alternative in the area I lived I had no choice but to continue to deal with the same broken system. If there are already too few options available to customers, what options would a proposed merger leave customers? It is clear that 3G and 4G service providers aren't a viable option as claimed by Comcast so I am urging you to reject the proposed merger and keep competition in the marketplace and options at customer's fingertips. This proposed merger does nothing to help the American consumer.
