

7521745392.txt

Internet ISP's should be required to offer a dumb pipe that is unaware and unconcerned with what data I choose to download through that pipe. All data on the internet should be treated the same to continue to promote competition and to allow upstarts a level playing field to compete with already established companies. The internet's amazing ability to spread information quickly can be nothing but hampered by allowing ISPs to choose what traffic does and doesn't get priority treatment.