Net Neutrality is a Human Rights issue. Article 19 of the Human Rights Declaration says that "Everyone has the right to freedom of opinion and expression; this right includes freedom to hold opinions without interference and to seek, receive and impart information and ideas through any media and regardless of frontiers." Net neutrality makes it possible for individuals around the globe to exercise these rights, which in turn allows for other rights to be exercised as well. Net neutrality is the First Amendment of the Internet. And Internet that should remain open and democratic in order to promote innovation, creativity, and social change.
