

Regarding AT+T & DirectTV merger:

I live in a small town in "flyover country" or better known as The Heartland. RFDTV is an important part of our lives out here... We that live a slower, quieter life do not enjoy the same entertainment that city folks do. RFDTV meets our needs, unlike the major networks and cable stations. Life out here is so different than in a metropolitan area that you have to live here to realize that fact. If RFCTV is taken from us we will be the great losers.

Please take us "country folk" into consideration. We are a part of this nation too. Actually we believe we are the heart of this nation.

Surely there is room for a rural cable station...probably even more than one. Do not allow these huge mammoth corporations run over us and push or desires out of the way. There is a need. Remember this, please.

RFD originally was established to connect folks out in the country with folks in the cities. Today RFDTV is doing the modern version of this connect. It is important!
