

7521748493.txt

It is extremely important that we protect Net Neutrality. Corporations should not be able to control the very important medium that promotes competition, start-ups, small business or anything else that threatens their profits. The internet is for everybody, not just those that can afford it, and giving control of the regulations of communications companies to the former executive of those very companies is like hiring a dingo as a babysitter.