

Dear FCC,

As an American citizen, I strongly believe that it is not in the best interest of myself and my fellow Americans to allow the proposed merger of AT&T and DirecTV to go through. Especially as the proposed merger of Comcast and Time Warner Cable is being considered, this merger stands to reduce competition even more in the television and internet markets. This would allow these companies to have more power over consumers as they would no longer have to compete in true market environment. I can not think of one tangible benefit for the American consumer that could come from this merger.

Sincerely,

Peter Bandrowsky
