RFDTV presents vital information to the American public through their telecasting of rural America. This information is vital to all Americans , rural and city, for all to understand what it takes for all peoples to be fed.

Business people from all walks of life need to understand the importance of our rural communities, after all, our forefathers worked this land in very struggling times so that we, today, can have the life we enjoy.

The farmer and rural information needs to be kept at the front of our society by way of RFDTV programming.
