I am concerned that we may lose programming relating to the rural , community , I realize there are bigger sponsors ( more influential money ) in the mass media sectors but aren't rural news , entertainment ( like Molly B's polka party part of America too . Does the bottom line of profit always have to be the deciding factor ? we in rural America helped build this great Country , let us enjoy some of the old traditional 'down home' country style broadcasting . To you "big city' 'big money' should not influence your decision to ignore the " common people " . Slow down your pace , c'mon back to rural America , there should be a place for commercialization , but , c'mon back to the basics too . Thank you for your time & consideration . Vince & Mary Wogan
