

7521794079.txt

I support net neutrality. The ISP industry should be regulated closely by the government because the Internet is a fundamental service that is required by everyone. It is simply impossible to have a meaningful existence in this modern world without reliable access to the Internet. It touches every part of modern day life like access to education, employment opportunities, the ability to work anywhere and the conduct of personal and public business. We need a free and open Internet. The list is endless. Imagine trying to have a normal life where private companies control the flow of your information or put a premium on the level of service you receive. I support heavy regulation of the ISP industry for example regulation of the sort found in Title II of the Telecommunications Act. Please keep the Internet open and ensure equal access to all. Thank you.