My family and I have been having ongoing problems with the service of Time Warner Cable, dating over a year now. We pay in good faith every month for our service, but continue to receive substandard internet, cable & phone service. We live in a rural area and our fear is that Comcast (apparently known to be the worst cable carrier in the US) will provide an even lower level of service than we presently have. In an age of changing and advancing technology, this merger appears to be ten steps backwards, rather than forward. It is bad enough dealing with Time Warner Cable; we can't even imagine how bad it will be with Comcast--based on their ratings and reputation. Please help!!!
