

7521805375.txt

Fight to keep the internet open and keep net neutrality. Allowing ISP's to charge for "fast lanes" is going to hurt the consumer. The internet has become a necessity like water or electricity. If we allow the ISP's to dictate who can have fast service and who doesn't, that gives them too much power and will create a massive increase in costs to consumers not only directly to our internet service but also indirectly through other services like Netflix or Gaming.