I'm sending this information to voice my opposition to the proposed merger between AT&T and Direct TV. This merger will likely cause these entities to cease broadcasting RFD network programming to a sizeable region of the United States. The RFD Channel is important to rural communities, particularly those who are involved in agriculture. The RFD channel is a lifeline of information to a group of people who are engaged in growing the food that is enjoyable by nearly every US citizen. Without the RFD channel it would be difficult for these folks to keep up with rapidly changing technology.
