The internet has proved to be an unparalleled resource to aid small businesses, startup companies, entrepreneurs, as well as artists and musicians. It has also become our country's main source for both global and local news. To do away with net neutrality in the interest of large corporations will not only hurt those small businesses that rely on the equality of the internet, but may also result in Americans paying more money to these companies that already monopolize our internet service.

The internet is the greatest invention of the century partially because of the freedom it allows. It is a level playing field. Please do not destroy that.
