

7521826791.txt

I would like to express my support of net neutrality. The Internet is no longer the luxury it was and is becoming as necessary as electricity for some. How internet service providers function should be just as regulated as public utilities are - for the public benefit, not corporate. I want to see strong regulations that acknowledge the reality of the internet as a potentially powerful public good.